Old Man Winter Arrives

Who said the winter had gone sissy? There has been considerable talk about the very mild nature of the current season and this, of course, provides no end of openings for the "old-timers," including those who battled the elements during the post-Thanksgiving deluge of snow here in 1950, to tell all about how things were "back when."

The weekend storm was no sissy. It was, in most respects, the real McCoy, or a reasonable sample of the true wintertime jolt.

Our weather forecasters, who do a reasonably good job of trying to tell us what's coming, were, in their forecasts for the weekend, conservative to the point of stinginess. They said something about 2 to 4 inches of snowfall.

Well, as a matter of fact, it seems as though there were 2 to 4 inches of snow in the first 2 to 4 hours Saturday afternoon when the white stuff began to drift down from the skies. The final count was 9½ inches at the airport and 12 to 15 in the Boardman - Austintown - Poland areas. The farther south the more snow.

The fellow who bought a snow-blower last fall had a great day. It has been a pretty tough winter for him, what with all of these nice, bright days—plenty of coldness but not enough snow to wet the overshoes. But over the weekend he really had a blowout and the fellows who were wielding shovels looked at him enviously.

One bright spot in the winter picture to date is that governmental agencies have been able to save many thousands of dollars because they haven't had to clean snow off the streets and highways. What the future holds is anyone's guess. In any event, the first real snow of the current winter season came at an opportune time, that is, if any time for a 12-inch snow is opportune. It hit during the weekend, during a lull in the ordinary business operations and it gave the snow-clearing crews plenty of room in which to work.

It's nice to think, too, that the first day of spring is less than two months away.

Wed

The January Thaw

Downtown yesterday the mercury shot to a surprising 60 shortly after noon to top the previous high mark for the day—56 degrees. The sun was shining, the air was balmy and inviting even while the eaves at home were dripping and here and there one could find slushy spots.

Something more than two-weeks ago when The Vindicator carried a feature article on the regularity of the January thaw, conditions were propitious. Then the skies opened on Jan. 12 and let loose with loads of light, dry snow.

For days, conditions were anything but bright for a thaw of any kind. Snow was piled three to four feet deep over yards in the residential areas and along streets and highways, as well as the driveways, huge mounds had been deposited by the snow plows. It appeared then as though months would be required to get rid of the snow.

Yesterday, however, gave us a touch of spring. The unusually warm weather has been beneficial for our morale as well as in other ways. It has, for example created a runoff which had added about 80,000,000 gallons of water to Meander Lake by yesterday morning and was expected to double that amount by today.

We welcome the warmth of the sun for a few days but we must not be deceived. The sky is fair and the air is soft—but this is the January thaw. February and March are yet to come. Need we remind you? Spring in the depth of winter, welcome though it may be, is a meteorological anachronism. So, while living it up today, don't let down your guard. There will be more snow, ice, slush and cold.

The March lion is rapidly getting a reputation in the Youngstown district for heavy snowfalls.

Today's accumulation, as usual, brought to mind many of the city's heaviest snowstorms. As presently indicated it will be only a pup.

In more recent years, 10-inch snowfalls were measured March 21, 1960, and everyone remembers the 10-inch snow of St. Patrick's Day, 1936. As a matter of fact, March set a new record at the U.S. weather station at Millport in 1960 with 20.6 inches.

On March 14, 1951, a 9-inch snowfall was measured. There are even some heavy snowfall in April, the most memorable April 19, 1901 with 20 inches.

But the granddaddy of all remains the Tranksgiving weekend in 1950 when the district was buried under 27 inches of snow.

Come, Spring, Let's Get Busy!

That hackneyed old weather saw about—"If winter comes can spring be far behind?"—could have been answered this year with a resounding: "What spring!" Until the weekend, that is, when the rains let up, and there was no frost capping on the shrubbery and even that stranger, the sun, put in an appearance. And, for frosting on the weather cake, temperatures climbed into the seventies yesterday.

Oh, the calendar was correct, all right. The season, by the numbers at least, arrived when it should have arrived. The vernal equinox was right on time—as it always is, but, until last weekend the spring buffs who usually have enjoyed two or three weeks of outdoor pastimes, or lawn labor by this time, have, instead, been listening to the hum of the blowers on gas furnaces.

As the poet, James Russell Lowell, put it quite some time ago, May, at least thus far, has been "a pious fraud of the almanac." Now May is half way, or better than half way, gone, and because of its inclemencies, good riddance!

Ohio fruit growers fear that, as a result of the frost, they may have lost millions of dollars' worth of crops—peaches, apples, strawberries and only time will tell what else. Minnesota and Kansas report wheat damaged or destroyed; the toll also includes frost-bitten apples in Virginia and Pennsylvania; tobacco in Kentucky and tomatoes in Ohio and West Virginia, not to mention cotton in Texas. Below-normal temperature readings have been reported from many sections of the country. The full impact of the frosty weather will be felt at harvest time in the way of prices calculated to raise the temperatures of housewives.

Spring arrived—by the calendar, that is—last March 21, nearly two months ago and it has brought very little since then except deluges of rain or killing frosts and certainly a bare minimum of comfort to those expectant citizens who remember Longfellow's cheery observations in Hiawatha:

*Came the spring with all its splendor,
All its birds and all its blossoms,
All its flowers, and leaves, and grasses.
May thus far has been an unreasonable* trollop, but there's still a chance for personal improvement, with about a month to go before the summer season begins officially. The rains have made the grass grow but the dogwood and the lilac, and leaves in general, looking for the sun, have been struggling to "come out." Look, Miss Spring, it's getting late. Let's not carry this winter-lingering-in-the-lap-of-spring thing too far. Your behavior has been outlandish. Let's get something going before it's too late!

Our Balmy (So Far) December

Dear, daft December is even balmy than usual.

This month of surprises—the unexpected and unanswered questions ("what to get for so-and-so; is your Christmas, shopping done; what happened to the Christmas-card list; Dear Santa, what are you bringing me?, etc.") is utter chaos under normal conditions. With the weather as berserk as the population, it's almost too much!

Just when everything—like six inches of snow the first week—points to a nice old-fashioned winter and all cars are anti-freezed and snow-tired, suddenly it's spring.

The plunging mercury zooms to a 14-year record high, the old-fashioned winter snow and ice melt, the anti-freeze boils out, convertible tops go down, and snow tires sing expensive songs at every turn on the bare pavements.

The sun shines, and then the rain comes down in alternating torrent and mist, blown by warm breezes. Reservoirs, creeks and ponds gurgle noisily, choking as they try to swallow nature's over-generous serving of holiday cheer.

Christmas lights in cities and little towns wink doubly bright in wet reflections, and thousands of parched fir trees, cut miles and months ago for the yuletide trade, are refreshed and lift polished branches from concrete-floored forests.

Creches in church yards and on village greens, huddled under white blankets just days ago, are washed and dried, then washed again.

Even the heavens are confused, with embarrassed stars peering uncertainly from beneath rumpled cloud covers and the moon shining brightly at sunrise! To add to the mixup, meteor showers are due through Tuesday.

Any minute now, the rain will change to snow, temperatures will shift into reverse, waters will become ice, breezes will turn into gales, and winter will begin anew.

Perhaps this joy of the unexpected is the dearest of December's many endearing qualities, the secret to its enchantment.

After all, did not the month of the first Christmas contain the greatest of all surprises, the most unexpected joy—and the answer to all questions?

SEPTEMBER 13

September Afternoon

There is something about a mellow September afternoon that sets it apart. Skies seem bluer and the cumulus clouds whiter.
On a breezeless day when the temperature is in the 70s and the calls of blue jays carry far as they flash above the orchard, one can feel the profound meaning of time.

A September afternoon is filled with the essence of fulfillment. The brooding peace on meadows and fields, upland hills and mountain shoulders is nature's late-summer benediction. Once again the good earth has produced food for man and his animals; once again the wildlife has raised its young.

Bonfires are not yet lit across the hills and over the lowlands but the warnings have been posted. Swamp maples lift scarlet pennants and ironwood holds purple heads to the golden sun. Flocks of gold finches swoop and swirl over the fields and their plaintive cheeps blend with the spirit of a maturing year.

Through a peaceful, quiet September afternoon a man works in garden and field.
Now the tempo is different from midsummer. There is the harvest to garner, but the feeling of autumn slows the pace of earlier activity. In-gathering time is here. That is the meaning of a ninth month afternoon. Nature's rhythms follow an ancient pattern, and so does the life span.
September is part of life and the afternoons are rich with meaning.
