Thurs P.M.

Hi Aunt,

I hadn't heard from you for so long I was beginning to think one of those Texas girls was keeping you busy. How do you like Texas huh now? You'd better not say you like it or Aunt + I will disown you. We hate all Texas 'cause a couple of Texas shipped down after they borrowed $60 from us + we've never seen them or the $60 since. I could have bought thousands of chocolate ice-cream cones with the $60. How is it?

Your nephew is dead to the world right now. I want to give him his bath + he won't wake up. He's getting so big + talks (cons to you) up the time. We got him a play saw + he stands up holding on to the side. He still can't creep. I guess he's too fat 'cause when he lifts his hind end the front won't move + when he gets the front up the back won't move + so on into the night. He did scoot off the bed the other day + fell flat on his face on the floor. I told Aunt if he has a flat nose when he grows up we'll know what. He's a tough one all right. I'm going to put him on his own next week. You should see him in his Taylor hat. Everyone we pass on the street he grins from ear to ear. And when he sees a girl he looks at her legs. I think Hank taught him that. He even makes friends with drunks. The other day an old drunk passed us & he grinned & the fellow stopped to talk. About that time I started running. When he sees another baby he almost jumps out of the cart.

We sure had a swell time at home. I hate it out here now. I don't know what we'll do. Hank likes it here & as far as the weather goes I do to. It's always nice. I think Hank mixes the folks too. He sure got plenty of attention for awhile. He even made friends with the chickens, believe it or not.

Remember the cute blond nest door. She's not going steady any more, so at last night. Just thought you'd like to know. Don't say I didn't tell you. I hear you have a slick chick in the East somewhere. I may live in California but I get the news.

Hank's finally coming to life again so til next time take care of yourself & watch those Texas cowgirls.

Love,
Betty
